

Scoresheet Baseball July 27th, 2009

Hi All: To start, I'd like to give a reminder of what some of the symbols on your rosters mean: The dash (-) next to certain players means they either got less than 8 at-bats the previous week in the majors (for hitters), or had zero innings pitched in the majors during the previous week (for pitchers.) Players on your rosters are sorted by season long playing time, so between that sorting, and use of the dash, we figure you should be able to get a pretty good idea of how many active players each team has. Also, on your lineup printed each week at the top of your report, a * means that player bats/pitches left handed, and the # means he is a switch hitter.

And it is also time once again for my annual note of encouragement to those of us who are not now in first place. There is still a lot of baseball left - 10 full weeks remain in the season after this report! Major League Baseball does see some pretty big leads disappear in the last 2 months of the summer, and the standings in Scoresheet often change even faster than in the majors. Even if you are 10 games out, with 10 weeks left, you only need to pick up one game a week to make up that difference. And one 6-0 week, combined with a bad week from those in front of you, could cut that lead in half in just one report! Also, almost all Scoresheet leagues do have a wild card also making the playoffs - don't forget to check out where you stand in the wild card race when trying to decide if you still have a shot at the post-season.

NEXT DRAFT: For leagues following our normal in-season draft schedule, the next (final) three round draft will be held the week of August 17th. Leagues using the web draft will have their web draft begin Tuesday afternoon August 18th, and the ranking list submission deadline will be Monday afternoon August 17th for leagues drafting by sending ranking lists to our office.

Listed below are the overall Scoresheet leaders from throughout all the Scoresheet leagues. As usual, we have included leagues with at least 8 teams that started at the beginning of the season. These leaders are only thru last week's games (games thru 7/19/09 only!) - these leaders do NOT include games played shown on the results you are getting with this newsletter.
