

SAMPLE

Batting and Bench Lineup Card

Below is a sample lineup (batting side) card. As you can see, on this side of the card you show your starting lineup, along with your bench players, listed in the order you'd like them to be used. Putting a Y in the steal column means a player will attempt to steal under certain situations (limited by how often he stole in the majors). Earliest sac bunt is the earliest inning you'd like a player to attempt a sacrifice bunt (if the situation warrants one.) A dash in the 'Rank or Pinch Hit for' column means you want that player to be pinch hit for if you are behind late in the game. The highest ranked pinch hitter available will come in to hit (you also rank your starters in case they don't have enough at-bats left to start a game, but are on the bench and available for pinch hitting duty.) If you run entirely out of eligible players at some position, we'll provide an automatic replacement, similar to calling up a .180 hitter from the minors. We used NL players for this example card, but the rules are exactly the same for both AL and NL - there is no DH in this year's winter game.
